ConsentUNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO
ONLINE CONSENT FOR RESEARCH PARTICIPATION

We are postdoctoral researchers at the University of Chicago, working in collaboration with Professor Risen in the Booth School of Business. We are planning to conduct a research study, which I invite you to take part in. This form has important information about the reason for doing this study, what we will ask you to do if you decide to be in this study, and the way we would like to use information about you if you choose to be in the study.

Why are you doing this study?

You are being asked to participate in a research study about mental imagery ability. The purpose of the study is to explore individual differences in the ability to imagine oneself in different locations.

What will I do if I choose to be in this study?

You will also be asked to engage in guided mental imagery following which you will be asked to answer a few short questions about your personal preferences.

Study time:

Study participation will take no more than 10 minutes

What are the possible risks or discomforts?

The risks to your participation in this study are mild physical or mental stress. The only benefit to you is the learning experience from participating in a research study. The benefit to society is the contribution to scientific knowledge.

What are the possible benefits for me or others?

You are not likely to have any direct benefit from being in this research study. This study is designed to learn more about behavior and perceptual judgments. The study results may be used to help other people in the future.

How will you protect the information you collect about me, and how will that information be shared?

Results of this study may be used in publications and presentations. Your study data will be handled as confidentially as possible. If results of this study are published or presented, no individual names or other personally identifiable information will be used.

Financial Information

Participation in this study will involve no cost to you.

What are my rights as a research participant?

Participation in this study is voluntary. If at any time and for any reason, you would prefer not to participate in this study, please feel free not to.

Who can I contact if I have questions or concerns about this research study?

If you have questions, you may contact the researcher Brittany Christian at Brittany.Christian@chicagobooth.edu.

If you have any questions about your rights as a participant in this research, you can contact the following office at the University of Chicago: Social & Behavioral Sciences; Institutional Review Board; University of Chicago; 5835 South Kimbark - Judd 333; Chicago, IL 60637; Phone: (773) 834-7835; Fax: (773) 834-8700; Email: sbs-irb@uchicago.edu

Instructions

On the following page you will see a photo. Your task is to imagine yourself in the depicted environment. Specifically, imagine being in the scenario from a first-person perspective. That is, imagine being embedded in the environment and seeing the surroundings through your own eyes. Think about what your experience would be like if you were actually in the scene and consider what you would do and how you would feel.

You will be given 30 seconds to look at the photo and imagine your experience in the depicted environment. Afterwards, you will be asked to write about the experience you imagined.

Block 7

Thank you for your participation!

Would you like to receive debriefing information?

☐ yes☐ noDebrief:

In this research, we are interested in whether the temperature of a photo can make you feel warm or cold. If these photos do evoke such visceral states, it is possible that they will influence your preferences for the types of activities you want to perform. For example, if you are feeling cold you may be more inclined to want to participate in activities that would warm you up such as drinking a cup of coffee.

If you have any questions, please feel free to ask the experimenter, or contact janina.steinmetz@chicagobooth.edu
