UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO CONSENT FOR RESEARCH PARTICIPATION

I am a postdoctoral researcher at the University of Chicago, working in collaboration with Professor Risen in the Booth School of Business. We are planning to conduct a research study, which I invite you to take part in. This form has important information about the reason for doing this study, what we will ask you to do if you decide to be in this study, and the way we would like to use information about you if you choose to be in the study.

Why are you doing this study?

You are being asked to participate in a research study about engaging in mental imagery and consumer choices.

What will I do if I choose to be in this study?

You will be asked to imagine being in an everyday situation. Then, you will work on a consumer choices task.

Study time:

Study participation will take no more than 5-10 minutes.

What are the possible risks or discomforts?

The risks to your participation in this study are mild physical or mental stress. The only benefit to you is the learning experience from participating in a research study. The benefit to society is the contribution to scientific knowledge.

What are the possible benefits for me or others?

You are not likely to have any direct benefit from being in this research study. The study results may be used to help other people in the future.

How will you protect the information you collect about me, and how will that information be shared?

Results of this study may be used in publications and presentations. Your study data will be handled as confidentially as possible. If results of this study are published or presented, no individual names or other personally identifiable information will be used.

Financial Information

Participation in this study will involve no cost to you.

What are my rights as a research participant?

Participation in this study is voluntary. If at any time and for any reason, you would prefer not to participate in this study, please feel free not to.

Who can I contact if I have questions or concerns about this research study?

If you have questions, you may contact the researcher Janina Steinmetz at janina.steinmetz@chicagobooth.edu.

If you have any questions about your rights as a participant in this research, you can contact the following office at the Social & Behavioral Sciences Institutional Review Board, University of Chicago, 1155 E 60th Street, Room 414, Chicago, IL 60637 Phone: (773) 834-7835, Email: sbs-irb@uchicago.edu

On the next page, you will be asked to imagine that you are experiencing a physical state at a specific point in time (e.g., being thirsty, tired, etc.).

You will have at least 60 seconds to fully imagine experiencing that physical state, and to describe your experience. After 60 seconds, you can continue writing, or you can advance to the next part of the study (a consumer survey).

At the end of the survey, we will ask you a few questions about your experience.

Please click when you are ready to begin.

These page timer metrics will not be displayed to the recipient.

For the next 60 seconds, please imagine that you are very HUNGRY right now.

Please write about what it would be like to be very hungry right now in as much detail as possible.

Think about what your experience would be like: What would you be thinking about right now? How would your body feel right now? How would you act? Please try to give us a detailed description of the thoughts and feelings you would have in the present moment.

For the next 60 seconds, please imagine that you are very FULL right now.

Please write about what it would be like to be very full right now in as much detail as possible.

Choices

In this survey, we want to know what size of different popular consumer goods you prefer right now. Please indicate which item you prefer, based on what you feel like.

To make the survey as realistic as possible, at the end of the survey, you will receive one of your choices. From the different products you choose your preferred size from, we will select one product and give you the size that you selected. That means that you will actually receive one of the items that you choose, so be sure to select what you really feel like having right now.

Let me tell you a bit about this study: In this study, we were interested in whether the simulation in the first part of the study affected which portion size people would choose in the consumer choice task. Some participants simulated being hungry, whereas other participants simulated being full. We expect that those participants who simulated being hungry would choose a larger portion of food items in the consumer choice task than participants in the full condition.

Thank you for your help with this research!
